What happened

Company: Google LLC Consumer: Kevin Turnage, Gilbert, Arizona Account: kdturnage@gmail.com Summary of Complaint Google LLC disabled my Google account following a hacking incident and has refused to provide access to my personal data despite repeated formal requests. In a certified letter sent on December 31, 2025, I explicitly notified Google that my account contains evidence relevant to an active federal court case. Google acknowledged receipt but has taken no steps to preserve, export, or provide access to the data, in direct violation of their Terms of Service and potentially in violation of obligations to preserve evidence once put on notice. _____ Timeline of Events (Key Additions) • December 31, 2025 I sent a certified legal notice to Google stating that my disabled account contained emails and documents being used as evidence in a federal lawsuit. I requested preservation and access. • January 9, 2026 Google's Legal Department acknowledged the letter, but dismissed the preservation request, saying: "Google only takes steps to preserve data upon being properly served with valid legal process." No further communication or preservation occurred. _____ Legal and Consumer Harms • Denial of access to personal and legal data • Disregard for legal notice of evidentiary relevance • Failure to honor ToS promises about user data ownership and export • Sham appeal and recovery system • Unfair and deceptive business practices at scale _____ Requested FTC Action Please investigate whether Google's conduct violates: • The FTC Act (15 U.S.C. § 45) for unfair and deceptive practices • Any federal consumer data protections • Obligations arising from data possession with legal significance

General Advice:

- You can find advice and learn more about bad business practices and scams at consumer.ftc.gov.
- If you're concerned that someone might misuse your information, like your Social Security, credit card, or bank account number, go to IdentityTheft.gov for specific steps you can take.
- Learn more about impersonation scams at ftc.gov/impersonators. If someone says they are with the FTC, know that the FTC will never demand money, make threats, tell you to transfer money, or promise you a prize.

What Happens Next

Thank you for reporting!

- We can't resolve your individual report, but we use reports to investigate and bring cases against fraud, scams, and bad business practices.
- Your report goes into the FTC's Consumer Sentinel database, which is available to federal, state, and local law enforcement across the country.
- We use reports to spot trends, educate the public, and share data about what is happening in your community. You can learn what other people in your state or metro area are reporting by visiting ftc.gov/exploredata.
- When the FTC brings cases, we try to get money back for people. At ftc.gov/refunds you can see recent FTC cases that resulted in refunds.
